

1	Savannah River
2	Ogeechee River
3	Canoochee River
4	Medway River
5	Altamaha River
6	Little Satilla River
7	Satilla River
8	Flint River
9	Chattahoochee River

Georgia Rivers Supporting Anadromous Fish Habitat

1. Savannah River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Savannah River system extends from the Atlantic Ocean west northwest to Clark Hill Dam at Clark Hill Lake.

2. Ogeechee River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Ogeechee River system extends from Ossabaw Sound west northwest to the town of Millen, Georgia.

3. Canoochee River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Canoochee River system extends from its confluence with the Ogeechee River west northwest to the town of Groveland, Georgia.

4. Medway River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Medway River system extends from St. Catherines Sound west northwest including the extent of Mt. Hope Creek

?? The Mt. Hope Creek tributary is included within the anadromous fish habitat range.

5. Altamaha River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Altamaha River system extends from Altamaha Sound west northwest encompassing the entire Altamaha River. The following tributaries are also included:

?? The Oconee River from its confluence with the Altamaha River and north northwest to Lake Sinclair.

?? The Ohoopsee River from its confluence with the Altamaha River north to the town of Ohoopsee, Georgia.

?? The Little Ocmulgee River from its confluence with the Altamaha River north northwest to the town of Helena, Georgia.

?? The extent of Sturgeon Creek from its confluence with the Altamaha River.

?? The Ocmulgee River from its confluence with the Altamaha River north northwest to Jackson Lake.

?? The entire extent of Tobesofkee Creek from its confluence with the Ocmulgee River.

6. Little Satilla River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Little Satilla River system extends from St. Andrew Sound west northwest to just north of the town of Waverly, Georgia.

7. Satilla River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Satilla River system extends from St. Andrew Sound west northwest to just south of the town of Dixie Union, Georgia.

8. Flint River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Flint River system extends from Lake Seminole east northeast to Lake Blackshear.

9. Chattahoochee River

Anadromous fish habitat within the Chattahoochee River system extends from Lake Seminole north to the Walter F. George Reservoir at the Walter F. George Lock and Dam.